Video recordings of your meeting presentation or participation at a convention or trade show is an effective approach to marketing that can pay dividends for your company or organization. One of the biggest reasons to use a video production team is to expertly capture the event and use it to promote the company or organization. Whether it is a large event or a small meeting, video lets you build a library of resources for the future, which you can use in various ways, online or DVD.

Another great way to utilize a video production company is to enhance attendee involvement by recording quality video interviews, testimonials and demonstrations. Written testimonials are great, but video testimonials are more engaging and show enthusiasm and captivation that a printed testimonial would not be able to convey.

Tim Trott Productions can provide HD video recording and production, event and meeting videography, corporate video productions for conferences, trade shows, seminars, training, or trade shows. We also provide post production services, editing, animation, effects and titles.
